

Katahdin Region News

By Brian Brown

MILLINOCKET—A trio of retired Millinocket police officers were back in service for one day last weekend teaming up to help the department raise money for Special Olympics through Fueling Dreams at Circle K.

The Millinocket Police Department joined several other law enforcement agencies taking part in the fundraiser on Saturday at Irving and Circle K locations around the Pine Tree State. The Millinocket fundraiser at the Central Street business featured current Police Chief Craig Wor-ster along with retired officers Warren Nelson, Rick Leavitt and John MacPherson pumping gas and collecting donations to support Special Olympics Maine. Representatives from Living Innovations and Special Olympics athletes also participated.

The event, which ran from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., collected nearly $1,000 in donations while Special Olympics Maine will also receive a portion of gasoline sales during the fundraiser.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution can do so through Living Innovations in Millinocket.

Retired officers help Millinocket police raise money for Special Olympics

Retired members of the Millinocket Police Department joined Special Olympics athletes, Living Innovations and Millinocket Police Chief Craig Worster during Saturday's Fueling Dreams fundraiser at Circle K in Millinocket. (Photo courtesy Millinocket Police Department)